Our graduate programs are challenging and well-structured to prepare students for career advancement and lifelong learning. At Kutztown, you can earn a master's degree or certificate in various fields taught by experienced professors. We offer flexible learning environments where you'll be learning alongside other students with different backgrounds. Before starting the application process, please review your program requirements on our website. You will need to provide official transcripts from all institutions you have attended for admission into our graduate programs. Transcripts can be mailed to us at Kutztown University's Office of Graduate Admissions or sent electronically through graduate@kutztown.edu For some programs, letters of recommendation and essays might also be required. Be sure to prepare your recommenders in advance by sending them the necessary information and setting deadlines well before our application deadline. You can find more information on these processes in our videos. At Kutztown University, we understand that pursuing a graduate degree is an investment for you, which requires time, effort, and financial commitment. We're committed to making your graduate education affordable by offering federal aid and private loan options. For detailed information about tuition fees and funding options, please visit our Financial Aid page or check the most recent tuition and fee updates on our website. Lastly, we offer graduate assistantships at Kutztown University that provide full-time and part-time opportunities for students to gain valuable experience while working on campus. For graduate students seeking to join Kutztown University's community, the process typically starts several months before the desired enrollment term. The academic year deadlines for applying to graduate school vary by semester: Fall begins on August 1, Spring on December 1, and Summer on May 1. Most programs review completed applications ahead of these dates to form incoming classes or cohorts and return admissions decisions within one business week. This timeframe is recommended six to nine months prior to the deadline for transcripts, recommender notifications, and file reviews to ensure a smooth application process. International applicants seeking F-1 visas must be prepared with additional processing time. They should allow at least May 1 for fall admission and October 1 for spring admission. For international students, available master's programs are limited based on the amount of classroom instructional time allowed by SEVIS. Transcript evaluation is mandatory, and detailed information can be found on the International Admissions page. Local applicants can start the application process up to two to three months before the deadline. Financial aid changes due to significant life events like job loss or spouse's employment status may impact eligibility. However, this depends on specific circumstances as certain events like bankruptcy or sibling enrollment in another college do not qualify for re-evaluation under the Professional Judgment process. Changes that may affect FAFSA eligibility include unexpected changes in income or family status such as a divorce or separation. Other significant changes include receiving untaxed income like disability benefits or alimony, experiencing excessive medical expenses, or the death of a parent or spouse. Additionally, one-time taxable income from sources like IRA distributions can also impact eligibility. A change to the Cost of Attendance (COA) may allow for an increase in PLUS and private loans, but does not affect need-based awards. Students who are high school dual-enrolled, graduates, or have a zero Student Aid Index (SAI) are not eligible for Professional Judgment. Those experiencing significant changes should contact the financial aid office to discuss possible adjustments. Dependent students under 24 may request a Dependency Override if unable to obtain parental information due to special circumstances. When in public places, both indoors and outdoors, people are advised to maintain a distance of at least 6 feet from others who are not part of their household. This rule applies regardless of whether individuals are wearing face coverings or not. Dr. Dale E. Parson offers office hours for students seeking guidance, as outlined on his Zoom link. In preparation for the upcoming Spring 2025 semester, several important dates and events have been announced. Registration will reopen on January 8, 2025, while full-term add/drop periods occur between January 27-February 3, 2025. Additionally, there are specific registration deadlines for undergraduate and graduate students, as well as important dates like Spring Break (March 16-23, 2025) and final exams on May 12-16, 2025. To avoid confusion, a final exam schedule has been provided, taking into account course meeting times. However, evening courses with start times beyond 5 p.m., weekend courses, and courses starting at 7 a.m. have their final examinations or alternative evaluation methods scheduled during the final examination week. The final examination schedule mirrors the course's regular meeting time during the semester, with all exams lasting two hours. In case of postponed examinations, they will be held on Saturday, May 17, 2025, from 8-10 a.m., 11 a.m.-1 p.m., or 2-4 p.m. If an exam is rescheduled, it will maintain the same time slot as originally planned. The university administration will announce any changes through Kutztown University radio, local stations, and dormitory announcements. Final examination conflicts occur when two exams are scheduled at the same time or three or more on the same day. Students experiencing a conflict should review the final exam policy and submit the necessary form by the 10th week of the semester.
