Similar to base components, the head can be elaborated. This allows you to place the corresponding part of the weapon in the forging. After placing in a base component you access the head or head and the pommel. If you haven't found any other option yet. You will be able to tie with your team and take parts that you do not like, or dismantle your equipment completely and save the parts for later. In this case, if you use any complete tool with that piece in it, extracting anything that a pickaxe regularly mines (like stone) in a 3x4x3 instead of a 1x1x1 (or otherwise a block). The pommel is optional, but the head allows you to connect to an axe, pique, leaf or jewellery. Use the forging as any processing table, you have a basic slot that has a contour and other slots that you can put parts only after filling the basic slot. The basic slot (with the outline) is for the "base tools" that are the Vara or the Iron Rod (covered above).
