Softonic reviewThis Desktop Calendar has a full desktop view and it is loaded with organizer features. It is a free program that acts as a good alternative to the software that is already installed on your computer. The program also has many of the features you tend to find in paid programs so consider this calendar before you buy one. It Beats Most Paid Calendar Programs Out Of SightThe Desktop Calendar interface is clean but that is partially due to its less-than-ample features. It does have all you would expect such as an organizing section a clear view of the days and months and the ability to write things on your calendar but it could use a few advanced functions such as a better notification system and the ability to color code or group your tasks. It is loaded with organizer features but one feels it could use a few more sorting and categorizing features too. Conclusion - Close To Perfection The Desktop Calendar acts as a great calendar that doubles over as an organizer. It has more features than one may expect from a calendar program but it could replace paid calendar apps if it just did a little more. However the program is free and non-intrusive so one feels obliged to give it the thumbs up. It doesn't lag it doesn't stutter and it doesn't slow your computer down. A clean and simple interface! There are both calendar and organizer functions! It doesn't slow your computer down when it is in the backgroundYou cannot synchronize it with GoogleOne feels that just a few more functions may have made it perfectAesthetically pleasing but not exciting Free Download for WindowsRecord anything by double-click on desktop. Can't remember anything? Missed an important date today or forgot someone's birthday? Use a desktop calendar to pin important events to your desktop. There are many free desktop calendars, but not all of them are good. Rainlendar is one of the best. Here's a screenshot how it will look like on your desktop: Every event that you add can be assigned to a category. Whenever you assign a category, you will see a category icon on the left side of the event name. This might help to get a quick overview. On top of that each category has it's own color, so each day will have a different icon and color depending on the event that you added: Event Manager: Rainlendar comes with an integrated event manager and todo-list that allows you to pin important stuff onto your desktop: You can even define a recurrence and make sure that you won't forgot a birthday of someone next year. A pre-defined alarm message and sound is also possible. If you want to get an alarm days before the actual event Rainlendar can notify you and open a specified URL for you. This would probably work as a nice surprise too: Simply install the calendar on someone's desktop and open a certain webpage on a certain date, e.g. you could open up a birthday page when the person has birthday. ToDo-List Download Free Desktop Calendar Rainlendar has been translated into 55 languages and comes with tons of skins. There is also a Pro edition available if you really fall in love with it. A backup feature allows you to backup all important dates and copy them on another PC.
