If you are using Eclipse, then let the IDE (Integrated Development Environment) create a main Activity class and layout file for you. First, add a new class to your project, naming it Song. Each song in the list will be represented by title and artist text strings, so we will use the TextViews to display this data. You should be able to complete this series if you're an intermediate Android developer, so if you've already built a few apps, then this series shouldn't be a problem for you. Create and Configure a New Project Activity main.xml 2.Step Open the project's main layout file and replace its contents with the following layout: Query the Device for Songs Let's query the user's device for audio files. Click Here Conclusion We've now set the app up to read songs from Music player the user device. Inside the manifest element, add the following permission: Again Now stick to portrait orientation for simplicity. Here is a preview of the final app: In this tutorial, we will create the app and query the user device for audio files using the Content Resolver and Cursor classes. In particular, this Android Music Player app template is a great way to get started with building your own app. Make Browser App. Conclusion We have successfully created a Music App Android application using Android Studio. Finally, we will use a Media Controller class to give the user control over playback. In this tutorial series, we will create a basic Music player application for Android. Step Make a Music Player Android project. The Android platform provides resources for handling media playback, which your apps can use to create an Music player interface between the user and their music files. gradle.app apply plugin: 'com.android.application' android { compileSdkVersion 29 buildToolsVersion "29.0.2" defaultConfig { applicationId "com.dude.musicapp" minSdkVersion 15 targetSdkVersion 29 versionCode 1 versionName "1.0" testInstrumentationRunner "androidx.test.runner.AndroidJUnitRunner" } buildTypes { release { minifyEnabled false proguardFiles getDefaultProguardFile('proguard-android-optimize.txt'), 'proguard-rules.pro' } } } dependencies { implementation fileTree(dir: 'libs', include: ['*.jar']) implementation 'androidx.appcompat:appcompat:1.0.2' implementation 'androidx.constraintlayout:constraintlayout:1.1.3' testImplementation 'junit:junit:4.12' androidTestImplementation 'androidx.test:runner:1.1.1' androidTestImplementation 'androidx.test.espresso:espresso-core:3.1.1' } 3. Notice that the LinearLayout opening tag lists an onClick attribute. For some of the code we use in the series, you will need a minimum API level of 16, so you will need to take additional steps to support older versions. In the next part, we will use an Adapter instance to present the songs in a list view, starting playback when the user taps an item from the list. Add a new class to your app, naming it SongAdapter or another name of your choice. We are also going to use a Service class for music playback. When creating the class, give it the superclass android.widget.BaseAdapter. Step 3 Now We will use an Adapter to map the songs to the Music player list view. MainActivity.java package com.dude.musicapp; import android.media.MediaPlayer; import android.os.Bundle; import android.view.View; import android.widget.Button; import androidx.appcompat.app.AppCompatActivity; public class MainActivity extends AppCompatActivity implements View.OnClickListener { Button play,pause,stop; MediaPlayer mediaPlayer; int pausePosition; @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); play=(Button)findViewById(R.id.play); pause=(Button)findViewById(R.id.pause); stop=(Button)findViewById(R.id.stop); play.setOnClickListener(this); pause.setOnClickListener(this); stop.setOnClickListener(this); } @Override public void onClick(View v) { switch (v.getId()){ case R.id.play: if(mediaPlayer==null) { mediaPlayer = MediaPlayer.create(getApplicationContext(),R.raw.song); mediaPlayer.start(); } else if (!mediaPlayer.isPlaying()) { mediaPlayer.seekTo(pausePosition); mediaPlayer.start(); } break; case R.id.pause: if(mediaPlayer==null){ mediaPlayer.pause(); pausePosition=mediaPlayer.getCurrentPosition(); } break; case R.id.stop: if(mediaPlayer==null) { mediaPlayer.stop(); mediaPlayer=null; } break; } } } Introduction Building the music player will involve using the Content Resolver class to retrieve tracks on the device, the Media Player class to play audio and the Media Controller class to control playback. Add the following line to the project's Manifest inside the application element and after the activity element.After the package name to suit your own and change the class name if you wish. In the final installment of this series, we'll use the Media Controller class to give the user control over playback, implement functions to skip forward and back, and include a shuffle function. Feel free to amend the layout to suit your preferences. We will display a notification indicating the song currently being played, tapping the notification will take the user back to the app. Create News Android Application with Android Studio : Click Here Looking for a Quick Solution?If you're looking for a quick solution, there's a great collection of Android app templates over at Market. Also use a Service instance to play audio when the user is not directly interacting with the app. In the next part, we will begin playback when the user selects a song using the Media Player class. The launchMode will aid the process of navigating back to the app after moving away from it. We will use this class to model the data for a single audio file. We will use this method in the main Activity class to respond to user taps on the songs in the list, playing the song represented by the list item that was tapped. Eclipse should insert the following outline: When you run the app, it should present the list of songs on the device, clicking them will cause the app to throw an exception at the moment, but we will implement the click handler in the next tutorial.
