Tolerance is an important concept that helps people to live peacefully. Being tolerant means accepting the opinions and preferences of others, even when they live in a way with which you are not an agreement. Tolerance also means not to put your opinions above those others, even when you are sure you're right. Tolerant people show strength in knowing how to deal with different opinions and perspectives. Freedom Through tolerance tolerance not only makes peaceful coexistence possible, but also the opening to other ways of thinking can contribute to personal development. When you know more about different thoughts and ideas from all over the world, you will help you better understand the world. Teaching tolerance tolerance is the best gift that you can do them. Children should not grow with feelings of hatred and suspicion. Children who grow with the hatred and jealousy of others turn into unhappy people. And children forced to believe in certain opinions will become people who are not free or independent thinkers. If children experience love and tolerance, they can grow and conduct a happy and peaceful life. Curiosity for new ideas tolerance is an important aspect of the German company, even if there are people who, for example, are intolerant to migrants. There Part of people in Germany is very open and tolerant to people from other cultures. They accept different traditions and e As long as they don't break the rules in Germany. In most cases, lack of tolerance is the result of fear and ignorance towards the unknown. Curiosity and willingness to know new worlds, ideas and ways of thinking can help people to be more tolerant. When you learn more about people from foreign cultures, you also lose the fear of the unknown. Many Germans who have a lot of contacts with people from all over the world also have an open attitude. It is really useful for people who are new in Germany to have a lot of contacts with the Germans. It helps both sides to become familiar and finally to understand their lifestyle. Accepting the values of others It is not easy to be a tolerant person. It is good to stick to their values, but it makes sense to evaluate them, especially if they have an effect on others. It must be clear that everyone has their own opinions and values, which must be respected and accepted. If we want to live in a peaceful society, there is no alternative to tolerance. The meeting, organized by the Austrian OSCE Presidency 2017 and the OSCE Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR), brought together representatives of governments and civil society organisations working on issues relating to freedom of religion or belief of the 57 States participating in the Organization. Michael Georg Link, Director of the ODIHR, pointed out to participants in the Meeting the current challenges to build prosperous, open, tolerant and inclusive societies, explaining that hostile social forces, intolerant and that favor dangerous environments for particular religious or religious communities, jeopardize social peace and cohesion. The practice followed by certain OSCE member states is also of particular concern to limit the free exercise of the universal right of man to freedom of religion or belief to a list of religious or confessional communities predefined and approved by the State. TheLink stated: "Some participating states have come to the point of insisting that the exercise of freedomThe religion or belief requires a specific state permission, an understanding that goes against the concept of freedom of religion or belief as an inalienable right that belongs to everyone, including non-believers, without distinction. - Ambassador Clemens Koj, President of the OSCE Permanent Council and Permanent Representative of Austria to the OSCE, said that these challenges can only be met through a cooperative approach. "The right to freedom of religion or belief makes a vital contribution to promoting stability and sustainable security in our society," said Ambassador Koj. "Cooperation and dialogue are essential. The dialogue can promote respect, cooperation and bring the necessary common understanding of these rights and freedoms, in order to strengthen our democracies and the rule of law." Keynote Speaker Marco Ventura, a professor of law and religion at the University of Siena in Italy and a member of the group of experts from the OSCE / ODIHR expert on freedom of religion or belief, stressed that the freedom of religion or belief it is threatened in the OSCE region and That international cooperation can strengthen it as a force for security. Å e ~ "Freedom of religion or belief in the OSCE region suffers from being a Å e å,~å" EpytyÅ Å »Right, not a right taken seriously, or from being a Å e å ~ å e Å HberoningÅ right, the right to be afraid of. Both misunderstandings on freedom of religion or beliefs are based on a static view of society, and in turn are themselves to a static vision that hinders human rights and the supply of discrimination and intolerance. "Ventura said. The supplementary human dimension meeting, "Freedom of religion or belief: issues, opportunities and specific challenges in the fight against anti-Semitism and intolerance and discrimination against Christians, Muslims and members of other religions," will assess progress made in the implementation of relevant OSCE commitments and explore the opportunities and challenges that exist to further strengthen the right to freedom of religion or belief for all within the OSCE. The participants representing governments, civil society and international organizations and religious communities or belief will share their experiences of creating peaceful and safe society founded in respect for freedom of religion or belief of all. The Assembly will explore the role of inter-religious and inter-religious dialogue and cooperation in creating conditions for lasting security.
