Jingle bells...Christmas Sheet Music: "Jingle Bells"There are many stories that speculate about the origins of the Christmas tree, but there is only one song that honors the beauty of the trees we decorate every holiday season. On the next page, we provide an overview of "O Christmas Tree. " Popular stories that tell how evergreen trees came to symbolize Christmas can be found in almost every culture. The secular lore describes evergreen trees blooming in every forest on earth the night Jesus was born. It is also said that Martin Luther, after melting the stars crashing over the tree tops, cut down an evergreen and brushed it with candles to replicate the effect he had witnessed in the forest. These stories are the basis of the German ageless song praising all the trees in Yuletide: "O Tannenbaum", or "O Christmas Tree." Even if the identity of its author has been lost in the passage of time, this timeless tuning will not be forgotten". O Christmas Tree." LiricsO Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree, How beautiful are your branches, So green and bright in summer, as well as the snowy clamor of winter, O to the Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tre Holly and the Ivy." Given the different origins of many of the Christmas carols we sing, you might not be surprised to learn that it has evolved as a result of an ad. "The Holly and the Ivy" probably originated as a large page (ad print) published in England around 1700. The song was released in 1861 by Joshua Sylvester, who admitted his commercial assets. Although laden with pre-Christian symbols, the lyrics of this song do not fully explain the meaning behind the green in its title: "The Holly and the ivy, when they are both full cultivated, among all the trees that are in the woods, the holly wears the crown: The rising of the sun, and the race of the dear, The reproduction of the fur organ, Sweet singing in the choir ...2. The holly bears a flower, as white as lily blossoms, and Mary brought sweet Jesus Christ to be our sweet Savior. The rising of the sun ... The treasure carries a berry, as red as any blood, and Mary brought sweet Jesus Christ to be our sweet Savior. The rising of the sun ... Christmas parties: "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy" Before our next song came, no one knew how Santa could get into the houses to deliver his gifts. Now we know he's using the fireplace. Not only does "Up on the Housetop" light on the operation of Santa Claus, it is also a fun song to sing. When Clement Clarke Moore wrote "A visit from St. Nicholas" as a Christmas entertainment for his children, he probably had no idea that his story would be told for hundreds of years. But thanks to his revisitation and the fact that the composer and parolyer of Ohio Benjamin Hanby decided to use it as an inspiration for his Christmas song, the fascinating story of the annual visit of Santa Claus has always been remembered as "Up on the Housetop." If Moore hadn't revealed Santa Claus's entry point and Hanby had not agreed, children from all over the world might still wonder how all those Christmas gifts are delivered!»Up on the Housetop» Lyrics1. On the roof of the house the rest reindeer, jump out good old Santa Claus. Down through the fireplace with lots of toys, All for children joys. Ho, I, I! Who wouldn't have gone! The words he wrote were immediately deemed Midnight Clear"1. And came on a clear midnight, That glorious song of old, From angels bending near the earth, Touching their golden harps. "Peace on earth, goodwill to men, from heaven all gracious king". The world in solemn lay stillnessTo hear the angels sing 2. Still across the cracked skies they come, With peaceful wings spread, And still their heavy music floats Oâer the whole world tired. Above her sad and humble plainsThey bend on flapping wings. And always oâer her sounds of BabelThe blessed angels sing. 3. And you under the crushing load of life, whose forms are bending low, Who labor along the way of climbingWith painful and slow steps: Look now, for joyful hours and d âoroCome sing. Christmas score: "It came on a clear midnight" Next The song offers a literal version of the biblical account of the bib shepherds looked at their flocks". The reason was simple: the song follows faithfully portrayed the biblical events on the night of Jesus' birth and helped create a group of distinguished musicians. George Frideric Handel, composer of the famous Messiah oratorio, wrote the music. Years later, Richard Storrs Willis of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" infused Handel's old melody with a text adapted from an even older work published by Nahum Tate and Nicholas Brody in 1696. And the result is timeless". While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by night, they all sat on the ground, the angel of the Lord came down, and the glory shone round about and the glory shone round about. 2 And he said, Fear not, for the mighty terror had seized their troubled minds. "To you, O city of David, is born this day of the seed of David, is born this shall be the sign: 4. "Lâheavânly who will find you with human sight displayed, All significantly wrapped in swathing bands, And in a manger of which. 5. "All glory be to God in the heavens, and to the earth be it Christmas scores: "While the shepherds looked at their flocks" The shepherds of the South of France were shouting "Gloria in excelsis Deo, Gloria in excelsis Deo!" from hill to hill to celebrate the advent of Christmas. The song on the next page, "Angels We Have Heard on High", is inspired by that cry of jubilation. For many years, the hills of southern France were home to shepherds whose duties required their presence day and night, all year round. To celebrate the birth of Jesus, a custom has developed among the shepherds that cannot be traced back to a precise date. On Christmas Eve, these shepherds shouted "Gloria in excelsis Deo, Gloria in excelsis Deo!" from hill to hill, spreading the celebratory music then fuses words with melody to become the French song "Les Anges dans nos Campagnes". The version we sing today was first published in a collection of Christmas songs in 1855: "Angels We Have Heard on High" Lyrics1. Angels whom we have heard above, singing sweetly over the plains, and the mountains in response, singing their joyful tensions Gloria, In excelsis Deo, Deo. 2. Pastors Why this Jubilee? Why do your joyful efforts prolong?What gladsome beWhich news inspire your heavy song?Glory...3. John Henry Hopkins, Jr., was instrumental in organizing an elaborate holiday contest for students at the General Theological Seminary in New York City in 1857. Hopkins, music director of the seminary, wrote and staged the contest, which included his optimistic composition "We Three Kings of Orient Are". This piece depicts the journeys of the three wise, who traveled from separate parts of the globe to pay homage to the nativity scene of Jesus in Bethlehem. The words and music of Hopkins raised Melchior, Caspar and Balthazar -- following a fabulous star and bringing gifts of gold, incense and myrrh -- to new musical heights. "We are three kings of the east" Lirics1. The three Kings of the East are the gifts that we pass through afar. Field and fountain, footprints and mountains, star of the pillow yonder. Today Coventry Carol not only commemorates its 16th century English roots, but also commemorates the innocent children who died because of King Herod's jealous proclamation. Ninna nanna, little little baby, By, by, lully, ninna nanna. Sisters, too, how can we do, To preserve this day? This poor Youngling for whom we sing, By, by, lully, ninna nanna.3. King Herod in his fury, today charged his men of strength, in his eyes, all young children to kill.4. Then woe unto me, poor child for thee, And always morning and day, for thy departure neither say nor sing By, Of, lully, ninna nanna. Christmas Sheets: "Cong of the Coventry" The following song was inspired by a minister's visit to the city of Bethlehem. Go to the next page to learn more about "O Little City of Bethlehem". When Phillips Brooks, a well-known Philadelphia minister, visited the Holy Land in 1865, he was so moved by the experience that he returned home with renewed determination to bring the story of Jesus' birth to his faithful With memories of his journey "still singing in his soul", Brooks wrote down the words his heart heard as he walked the streets of Bethlehem, and turned to Sunday school teacher and part-time organist Lewis H. Redner to help him complete the piece. This delicate hymn was first presented by the children's choir of the church to an enthusiastic congregation in 1868 "O Little Town of Bethlehem" Texts1. O Little City of Bethlehem, How much longer do we see you lying. Above your deep and fears of all yearsThey meet in you tonight. For Christ was born of Mary, And gathered all there, While mortals sleep, the angels watch over them with marvelous love. O morning stars together proclaim the Holy Birth! And sing praises to God the KingAnd peace to men on earth. 3. How silent, how silent, how silent, how silent, how silent, how silent, how some of this heaven. No ear can hear His coming, But into this world of sin, Where meek souls will receive Him, dear Christ enters again. Everything is calm, everything is bright, Round you Virgin Mother and mild; Sleep in heavenly peace. Sleep in heavenly peace. Sleep in heavenly peace. Silent night, holy night! Everything is bright, Round you Virgin Mother and mild; Sleep in heavenly peace. Sleep in heavenly peace. Sleep in heavenly peace. Manger». It is said that Martin Luther wrote "Away in a Manger", but the hymn probably debuted anonymously around 1885. The song was inspired by James R. Murray, who included the hymn probably the reason for his attribution to the great German religious leader. Given such a twisting evolution, you will not be surprised to know that some think Murray was the composer. Others are convinced that the text comes from the Scottish poem "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton", written by Robert Burns. No matter what its origin is, this hymn nest continues to soften the hearts every Christmas. Go to ask you to stay close to me forever, and love me, please. Bless all your dear children in your care, and bring us to Heaven to live with you there. Christmas parties: «Away in a manger»Our next song probably began as a French dance of the fourteenth century. Continue reading to learn more about «Take a torch, Jeannette, Isabella». French socialists of the 14th century often included retournelle, a lively court dance. Oneritournelle survives as the song that became the French Christmas carol "Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella". The central characters of the song could serve as inspiration for the two maids on duty depicted at the nativity in a painting by Georges de La Tour. The texts are said to Mary cries: Ah, ah, beautiful is the mother!Ah, beautiful is the mother!Ah, beautiful is her Son!2. It is wrong when the Child is asleep it is wrong when the Softly for the time to come; Look and see how charming Jesus is, See how He smiles, Oh see how He smiles in dreams. Christmas carol -- shares its melody with the traditional English song "Greensleeves". Learn the story of "What child is this?" You'll probably recognize the melody of the "Greensleeves" as identical to the Christmas anthem, "What Child Is This?" Initially, Richard Jones was credited for writing "Greensleeves" in 1580, but some believe that the author was King Henry VIII, rather than Jones. This traditional song was also mentioned by William Shakespeare in The Merry Wives of Windsor. In 1865, three verses of William Chatterton Dix's poem "The Manger Throne" were staged, giving rise to "What Child Is This?" "What while the shepherds watch. This is Christ the King, whom the shepherds guard and the angels sing. Hurry, hurry to bring His praise, the Child, the Son of Mary! 2. Why does he lie so meanWhere do ox and donkey feed? Good Christians fear: for sinners here The silent Word pleads. A nail, spear will pierce Him, the Cross be carried for me, for you; Hello This?""Good Christian Men, Rejoice", our next song, was written in the 14th century and has undergone many transformations since its anonymous fourteenth-century creation. In 1601 Gesius wrote a modern arrangement of the traditional piece, now called "In Sweet Jubilee".Later Johann Sebastian Bach Bach Bach Bach Theme of Gesius in the Choral Preludes for the Organ. In his next generation, Sir John Stainer further perfected the song with the new title, "Nun singet und seid froh". The Christmas song we enjoy today is courtesy of Reverend Dr. John Mason Neale, who translated the lyrics from German "Good Christian Men, Rejoice." Lyrics1. Good Christians, rejoiceWith heart, soul and voice, pay attention to what we say, News! Jesus Christ is born today! Chri Joy! Jesus Christ was born for this. He has opened the heavenly door, and man is blessed forever and ever. Christ was born for this! Christ was born for this. He has opened the heavenly door, and man is blessed forever and ever. He has opened the heavenly door, and he has opened the hea hall.Christ was born to save!Christmas Sheet Music: "Good Christmas Sheet Music: "Good Christmas Carol has been accused of having "lack of musical taste" -- but fortunately, modern audiences disagree. The composer of "O Santa Notte", Adolphe Charles Adam, found himself in the midst of controversy when his song received a negative reaction from French ecclesiastical authorities. The nineteenth-century composer, known for his ballet Giselle, was accused by a French bishop of "lack of musical taste". Poet Cappeau de Roquemaure added lyrics to Adam's music, renaming it "Cantique de Noel". Later, a translation by American composer John Sullivan Dwight brought the English version to our shores. Today, the solemn "O Holy Night" is sung as a popular Christmas Eve soloist". O Holy Night, the stars shine brightly, And âs the night of the dear Saviorâs birth. Long lay the world in sin and the error festered, Until He appeared and the soul felt its worth. Shivering with hope, the carol, "The First Christmas". Discover this Christmas classic on the following page. In the 13th and 14th centuries, mystery games -- dramatizations of biblical stories -- were quite popular. A favorite game topic was the birth of Jesus. These events were often orchestrated by singers, writers and musicians. Possibly of French or English origin ("Noel") means "Christmas"), First NoelÂ" remains a descendant of these productions. Words added by William Sandys for his 1833 compendium of hymns, Christmas Carols, Ancient and Modern, mark the first Noel the angels said, it was to some poor shepherds in fields where they O'er Bethlehem took its rest. And there it stopped and stopped. Noel, Noel its rest. And there it stopped and stopped and stopped and stopped is powerfully depicted in the music of the Christmas leaf: "The Message of Liberation of First Noel" Jesus for all people is powerfully depicted in the next song, "Go, Say it on the Mountain." Read this joyful song on the following page. To men and women held in slavery to slavery (and its memory), the ideals of liberation are held high. Therefore, the promise of liberation for the spiritual rousing, "Go, say it on the mountain." Although its author is unknown, the anthem is presumed to have originated in the early 1800s. "Go, Tell It on the Mountain" was made popular in 1879 when it was performed by the Jubilee Singers of Fisk University, a school that once specialized in the education of free slaves. "Go say it on the mountain" Lirics1. Go and tell it on the mountain, on the hills and everywhere, go and tell it on the mountain, that Jesus Christ is born! When I was a seeker, I searched both night and day, asked the Lord to help me, and He showed me the way. Oh! Go and tell it on the mountain, on the hills and everywhere, go and tell it on the mountain, that Jesus Christ is born! As the shepherds kept watching O'er silent flocks at night, Behold, a holy light shone across the sky. 3. The shepherds feared and trembled When I! above the earthRang out the choir angel Who saluted the birth of our Savior.4. The humble Christmas sheet: "Go, Say it on the mountain" What child does not imagine toys in parade, marching around when no one is there to see? Our next Christmas carlo paints just such a scene -- read on to learn about the origins of the wooden Soldiers' Parade. An audition of the undefeated "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" and probably guesses the German origins of the song. It was written in 1905 and then "imported" to Paris after a Russian producer heard the lively beat declaring it an ideal dance song for the new music review he was preparing. The song was destined for international fame. When the He moved to New York City, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" attracted the attention of the opera Ballard Macdonald who had written for the great Ziegfeld and other producers. Even if not recognizable as "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" LyricsThe door of the toy store is lockedAnd everything is quiet for the night. When suddenly the clock strikes twelve o'clock, the fun began. The dolls are in their best dispositionThere will be a wonderful paradeListen to the drum, oh, here they come, scream everyone. Listen everyone cheering, now they're approaching, it's the captain stiff as starch. Bayonets flashing, the music is collapsingAs the wooden soldiers march. Sabre a rattle, soldiers a winkAt every beautiful little maid. Here they come, here they come the night that has passed, When in the morning, without a warning, the toy man pulls the screen out of the window, There is no sign that the wooden brigade was ever out on parade. "Parade of the Soldiers of Wood" Carrying through the streets is a tradition of celebration. Visit the next page for a classic Christmas carol, "We Wish You a Merry Christmas". The habit of singing in the streets began in England when wealthy businessmen hired street singers to accompany their walks. The tradition quickly spread to all types of choirs. These singers became known as "waits", because the band performed and then waited for any sweet reward. Finding the perfect group of singers became a lengthy process; everyone competed for expectations who knew the best songs. "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" text1. We wish you a Merry Christmas, We wish and a Happy New Year.2. Now bring us a fig pudding, Now bring us a fig pudding the figure and the Christmas "Whether you're singing in Latin or English, our next song has long been a popular Christmas church hymn. Find yourself with "O Come, All Ye Faithful" by going to the next page. Moving to France in the 18th century, Englishman John Francis Wade made his living by transcribing scores and giving music lessons to children. It is not known if he wrote the lyrics of "Adeste Fideles", or if he found it in his line of work. Whatever the origin, Wade is credited with yound 1751. Revived a century later, "O How, Ye Faithful became a popular church hymn when Frederick Oakeley translated it into English from Latin. Oh come all you faithful, joyful, joyful come, sir, we salute you, born this happy morning; Jesus to You be given glory; Word of the Father, now appeared in flesh. Or come.. Christmas parties: «O Come, All Ye Faithful» The text of our next song comes from the popular «Joy to the World» is very unusual. His texts originated in the Old Testament as published in the translation of the Psalms of David of Isaac Watt in 1719. When the American composer Lowell Mason put these words into music in 1839, he added a notation that alluded to George Frideric Handel as a parolyer (it was common at that time to attribute a song to Händel to generate popularity). Thus, for over a century, the world believed that Händel had composed the lyrics of the song. In the earth receive his king, Let every heart prepare Him room, and heav'n and nature sing, E heav'n and heav'n justice, and the wonders of His love, and the Saw Three Ships". Historians love to discuss the symbolism found within the words of the Christmas anthem, "The Saw Three Ships." Are ships representing Columbus' journey? Or are indirect references to: the Most Holy Trinity, the Three Magi, or I Corinthians 13:13 (version of King James, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three things; but the greatest of these is charity")? Whatever the intention of the song's parolyer, "I Saw Three Ships" has been a popular anthem since its publication. in 1666. In particular, Cecil Sharp, an English collector of popular songs, discovered several versions of this melody in the British Islands. I saw three ships coming sailing in; On Christmas Day, On Christmas Day, I saw three ships comesail inside; On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day day in the morning.4. Pray, whither sailed those ships all three, on Christmas Day, which Christmas song Charles Dickens used in his classic story, "A Christmas Carol?"
